CULTURE

Plant in any good soil about six inches deep, lay the roots on the side with the eye up. After plant has four leaves pinch out the center, and side shoots will form, leaving four strong shoots, one bud to each branch, and you will have some fine blooms. If you want some choice blooms leave four buds to each plant, pinch off all others. When buds begin to show, water freely with liquid manure, also using a little bone dust and hard wood ashes. Scatter around the plant, not too close, and work it into the soil. As soon as the frost has killed the foliage dig the roots carefully, cut off the tops, place the roots up-side down in a box or barrel and store in a good cellar where they won't freeze. The following spring you may divide the roots and plant them.

Gladioli or Gladiolus

PLANTING—Plant in any good soil in full sunlight away from trees or shrubs, two or three inches deep in clay soil, four to five inches in sandy soils. Don't use any fresh manures when planting. You may use bone dust and pulverized sheep manures right after planting bulbs and rake it in the ground and another dressing when spikes begin to show. Or use any liquid manures about the color of strong tea. In dry season water freely. Make the rows to suit and set the bulbs four, six or eight inches apart in the row.

BLOOMING—For best results cut the spikes when the first two flowers open and let them bloom in the house, leave as many leaves as possible on the plant to mature the bulb; remove wilted blossoms; with a sharp knife cut about an inch of the stem off each morning, making a slanting cut; give them fresh water daily.

DIGGING AND STORING—In the fall before hard frost, dig the bulbs, cut off the tops close to the bulbs, dry well in the air and sunshine before storing in the cellar. Any good dry storage of about 40 degrees is right. Any good shallow box will do. Don't put bulbs over four inches deep in boxes. You may cross pile your boxes which will give them plenty of air. Watch your bulbs closely, they will freeze as quick as potatoes. In about thirty days you may clean off the old bulb from the bottom, and if you care to save the bulbs, the size of pepper kernels, place them in dry sand in little boxes not air tight, planting them about two to three inches deep the next spring. With good care they will bloom the second year.

All bulbs offered per 100 are sold F. O. B. Express or Parcel Post collect.

CULTURE.

Any good rich soil will do, if not work in some bone dust around each plant, about a hand full. Use no fresh manures of any kind. A light application of lime or wood ashes is beneficial, if not applied too near the plant.

PLANTING.

We have had good results in transplanting iris any time in the growing season, except from about the middle of May to July first which is their blooming season with us. Set the plants so the rhizomes are about level with the ground.

PEONIES.

By all means plant a few peonies. They are one of the hardiest and finest flowers grown. By planting the early, mid-season and late varieties, you may have blooms for a month.
PLANTING.

Plant in any good rich soil that is well drained; fertilize the same as for Iris. In setting the plant have the eyes or buds come about level with the ground, as deep planting does not produce many blooms. September until the ground freezes is the best time to plant.
